An Evening Echo.
Rejoice we are allied
To that which doth provide
And not partake, effect and not receive
Nearer we hold of God
Who gives, than of His tribe that take,
I must believe.
—ROBERT BROWNING.

For the benefit of the Charleston Mail let it be said that Governor Glasscock's alleged extra session of the legislature never was born and hence it could not die.

Governor Glasscock has been crowned with thorns and thistles by the legislature of the state and every time he puts the crown on he gets pricked.

Discussing cabinet possibilities seems to be the main occupation of President-elect Wilson and several Democratic leaders now. The president-elect shows a hesitancy that augurs ill.

Of course Bryan is willing to be called to duty. He has been willing ever since 1896 to do public service, and why would he not jump at the chance after such a long and patient wait?

Dawson's state-wide gathering of Progressives the other day showed William P. Hubbard off the senatorial board. It is not at all strange, therefore, that the latter showed his displeasure the next morning when he arrived on the scene.

French, the Democratic caucus nominee for president of the state senate, is likely to experience the same feeling Champ Clark had over what happened in the Baltimore convention. French has it now so far as his party is concerned in the senate but the latter is in no mood to let him keep it.

A movement is on foot to change the date for assessors to begin their work back to January 1 from April 1, as it now is. Such date might be more convenient for the assessors but the Telegram seriously doubts whether it would be in the interest of the farmers. To assess their feed and their live stock at that date appears to be double taxation.

More Than One Duty.
A siren song now in some quarters is vote to let your wife vote. That may be one of your duties but not all of them according to the Kansas standard as brought to the attention of West Virginians as follows by the Bluefield Telegraph:

The average West Virginia woman is not troubled because she is deprived of the ballot, and she would not care to change with the Kansas woman, who can vote, if the following, which appeared as an advertisement in a Kansas newspaper, indicates the conditions:

Get your wife a light ax to split kindling with. (Don't think because you voted for equal suffrage you paid her all the debt you owe her. Also get her some lamps and lanterns, so she can do the chores after dark—they'll be handy these long winter evenings.)

We are not so thrifty as they are in the breezy West, and no wonder the Kansas women wished to vote.

Simeral and Reynolds.
Thomas Reynolds brought here to instruct the city fire department, says over his own signature:

"All the local theaters are working under a violation of the law."

W. S. Simeral, manager of the Bijou theater, whose dealings with the public have won him the confidence and respect of the citizens generally of Clarksburg, says:

"The Bijou was examined this morning by State Fire Marshal Moses Kandelberger and Fire Chief Reynolds and was pronounced safe in every respect."

Accepting the statement of Mr. Simeral as true, it is up to Reynolds to explain what violation of law the Bijou is working under. Let the public have it.

Reynolds is Not Chief.
Thomas Reynolds in all probability was issued a commission as an assistant fire marshal under a misapprehension.

Reynolds was brought here as an instructor of the fire department and not its chief. Temporary authority may have been delegated him as to directing the fire-fighting force and bringing the department up to greater efficiency, but none was given him by the city council to regulate fire hazards.

Thomas F. Gill is in fact fire chief and by virtue of that fact assistant state fire marshal for Clarksburg. Mr. Gill was appointed by the city council and that body has never deposed him.

It is brazen assumption of authority on the part of a man brought here merely to instruct the fire department to undertake to pass on fire hazards, and to command certain things along that line to be done.

The very fact that he acquired a commission from the state fire marshal and his haste after that in showing alleged authority disclose another fact that he was not at all sure of his supposed power, as well as a motive to usurp authority.

When did he bring the matter of alleged unsafe theaters to the attention of the council? When did he consult that body as to whether it regarded him eligible to act? When did he ascertain the pleasure of the council in taking such hasty initiative? Perhaps, he was too busy engaged in inspiring reflections on the mayor, to think even that the council is the law-governing body of the city. At any rate he ignored the council.

Good may be aimed at and may result by and from his actions, but the methods employed in respect to the theaters are so void of regard for the men a majority of the voters of Clarksburg have elected to govern the city that they indicate an ulterior motive.

Reynolds is not even clothed with citizenship here, which fact again shows the gall he has in usurping governmental functions.

A complete investigation of his conduct toward the mayor should be made and in the meantime he should be suspended from duty.

Governor and Legislature.

From time to time since the date for the convening of the regular session of the legislature of the state, it has been held out that the coming of Dr. Hatfield from his home at Eckman to Charleston would possibly mark the breaking of the deadlock in efforts to organize the senate. It has been frequently asserted that he might hold the key to the situation and unlock the tie-up.

Of course, this thought has been based on the fact that he is the governor-elect of the state and as a result will soon become governor. Another thought is created. It is that the system of state government so far as the convening of the legislature and the inauguration of a governor are concerned as to dates should undergo a change. In many of the states the governor is inaugurated the first day of the year and the legislature assembles soon after that. In this state the legislative session for the year is over before the inauguration of a governor.

The members of the present legislature with the exception of the hold over senators were elected in the campaign in which the governor-elect was elected. The majority of the party's representatives in that body were elected on the same platform on which the governor-elect was chosen. That platform outlined the contemplated legislation of the Republican party and Dr. Hatfield as the governor-elect by virtue of the Republican party is looked upon to lead in the enactment of laws promised in the campaign. Under the present circumstances, he does not even become governor until after the legislature has passed on that program and adjourned. With that platform may be emasculated, repudiated or pigeon-holed. He does not have the office of governor personally backing him and there is little in fact that he can do beyond personal persuasion.

If the legislature treats his platform badly, he has recourse, of course, to extra sessions of the legislature, but the legislative branch already having had the platform before it and accomplished nothing, the governor's prestige and power over extra sessions is found weak. In the event he does not call an extra session he must wait two years to have his platform considered and by that time the personnel of the legislature has been changed by virtue of another election.

This all goes to show that the incoming governor should have the incoming legislature and thus avoid the complications, annoyances and possible conditions herein alluded to.
